

DDS Newsletter - Week of 10/10

Good Afternoon DDS Members,

Hope you all had another wonderful and fulfilling week (although losing to Utah and getting embarrassed at home during parents weekend was certainly something I want to forget about sooner than later). I'm sure you all killed her midterms and that you are all ready for the fall break that we also rightfully deserve and need. Hopefully you will all be celebrating or taking time off in various forms, for me I'll be celebrating my mom's birthday tonight with my family. After being away from family in college, I can safely say that there's nothing more important to me and most people I know than their family. The people who endorsed you since the age of one and shaped you into the people you are today, suffice to say, we owe them everything. For the countless years of unbridled love and selfless acts to put our futures in front of theirs. Never forget how lucky we are and embrace that love every day. Most importantly, if you can take 5 minutes out of your day just to text your parents and tell them, "I love you", you might just see how much of a difference that will make

Without further ado, here are this week's announcements:
